

Your Own 24/7 Vending Machine...

Hi FIRST NAME it's Rebecca from AWAI here and I'd like you to picture this scenario

In a busy train station, lots of people milling and hurrying about their business, a man pushes his trolley full of cans of soda drinks and water to a vending machine next to the entrance of the ticketing hall.

He then opens the back of the machine to retrieve all the coins and notes. Afterwards, this operator fills up the machine with more cans of soda and bottles of water. Following that, he moves on to the opposite machine.

This got me thinking, that a vending machine is just like a website, full of rich and useful content with promotional and purchase links. The website is the machine while the content represents the cans of soda in the scenario above.

As millions of people use the Internet to search for information, many wind up making a purchase or click on a promotional link.

And whenever they do that, someone gets paid.

Wouldn't you like to be that person?
